The Mary Robinson Foundation-Climate Justice (MRF-CJ) was founded by Mary Robinson, former president of Ireland and former UN High Commissioner for Human Rights. Based in Ireland, MRF-CJ, works to address the human rights impact of climate change. The Foundation is a leading global voice on behalf of climate change refugees, women's leadership on gender and climate change and the risks faced by future generations from inequality and poverty as they are linked to the climate. Under Ms. Robinson's leadership, MRF-CJ convenes key actors to address climate change and bridges gaps between groups and individuals who otherwise would not connect. MRF-CJ also provides creative thought leadership on how to address climate change, such as its Principles of Climate Justice (<http://www.mrfcj.org/principles-of-climate-justice/>). Among the Foundation's key priorities is fostering the successful implementation of recommended actions from the December 2015 Paris Agreement at the UN Global Convention on Climate Change. MRF-CJ is a rich resource for all those interested in the practical aspects of work to improve the climate as well as putting justice and equity at the heart of the response to climate change.
